

Dear Wedding Couple,

Congratulations! Planning your wedding will be very exciting. Between now and your wedding day you'll have much to think about, and you'll want to take care of things that matter most. This is where I hope to be of help, at least where your photography is concerned.

While my Wedding Photography services are very flexible, with many options and products available, I always provide two professional photographers, including myself. Between us we will endeavour to capture the anticipation, excitement and atmosphere of your wedding day without taking it over or getting in your way. Everything will be faithfully and comprehensively covered from all angles. The finished album will generally show a combination of formal, informal and reportage styles, all images having being carefully and individually post-processed in the studio before you see them. And yes, if you're ordering an album, you get to choose which images make it in!

One important thing to mention is that whatever package you choose, photographic coverage is identical (we take the same photos regardless). During the course of the wedding day itself we will capture several hundred photos. Our second photographer is always on hand to capture the atmosphere with informal shots of you and your guests. We're yours for the entire day.

I will always arrange a comprehensive pre-wedding chat about one month before your wedding day to discuss all options and details.

All packages include 'Digital Negatives' (a high-resolution CD disc of all images in their final, high resolution, free from watermarks, as well as full personal usage licence, allowing you to use your photos in almost any way you wish.

DaveBulow Wedding Photography prices now start at just £950. Please see the information below. Many other options are available, and packages can be customised. Please feel free to contact me with any questions.
